Vinification

The harvest is carried out by hand and transported to the cellars in small crates where the grapes are then sorted. The grapes are then put in to stainless steel thermo-regulated vats and fermented for approximately 20 days. During the fermentation, the wine is mixed with the lees 3 or 4 times a day in order to ensure optimum extraction of the best tannins and good colour from the grapes.

Tasting

The eye is immediately drawn to the wine's attractive, deep purple colour with violet rim. Young and lively on the nose with wild berry overtones. The nose is confirmed by the palate. Good structure with excellent balance of alcohol and tannin.

Serving suggestions

This wine is excellent with both red and white meats, and cheese. We suggest that the wine be drunk at an ambient temperature of 16° to 18° C.
